

Every Day

The daily routine. About 15 minutes total, spread across the day.

The week's posts are already written and scheduled from Sunday. This sheet is everything else, and it is the part that actually grows the page.

These are things that should happen each day, not one person's job. Hand out whatever makes sense for who is working.

Morning: share the 11am post to Facebook groups

This is the highest-value 10 minutes of the day. Our page reaches the people who already follow us. Groups reach everyone else.

Share from a personal account, not the business page. Most local groups ban businesses from promoting themselves. A person sharing something happening locally is welcome. The business page posting the same thing gets deleted or gets you banned.

Anyone on staff with a personal Facebook can do this. More people sharing to different groups beats one person sharing to all of them.

How to do it right

1. Open the 11am post on the Backyard Brew page
2. Hit Share, choose a group
3. Write a real sentence above it. Never paste the marketing caption
4. Post
5. Wait a few minutes before the next group
6. Check back later and answer anyone who replies

The line you write above it matters most

Write like a person who happens to know about it. Not like an ad.

Good:

Pickleball tournament out at Backyard Brew tonight if anyone's looking for something to do. Free to play.
They do 9 rounds of bingo Mondays out on Sand Acres. Kids can play too.

Bad:

Join us tonight at Backyard Brew for an unforgettable evening! 🍷🎉

Which groups for which post

Match the post to the group. A poker post in a neighborhood page annoys people. The same post in a card-game group is genuinely useful.

Fill in your groups in the right column as you find them.

The post is about	Share it to these kinds of groups	Your groups
Bingo (Mon)	Green Bay community, things to do, family activities, game and trivia night groups
Pickleball (Tue)	Pickleball groups and clubs, rec sports, Green Bay community
Tacos + Poker (Wed)	Poker and card game groups, Green Bay food groups, community
Market & Brews (Thu)	Local vendor and maker groups, small business, craft fair and farmers market, community events
Karaoke (Fri)	Nightlife, live music, weekend plans, Green Bay community
Pool Night (Sat)	Billiards and bar sports, nightlife, community
Disc golf (any day)	Disc golf groups, Wisconsin disc golf, statewide disc golf. These are big. Post here often
Trails and hiking	Hiking, outdoors, dog owners, Wisconsin trails
Food	Green Bay food and restaurant groups, foodie pages
General or vibe	Neighborhood pages, things to do in Green Bay, Ashwaubenon
Hiring	Local jobs, Green Bay employment

Two rules that keep you out of trouble:

- Read each group's pinned rules once. Some allow promotion only on certain days
- Never post the same thing to eight groups in two minutes. It flags as spam

All day: stories

Stories are where people see that the place is alive right now. Posts are planned. Stories are real.

Never fewer than 2 a day. Past that, more is always better. There is no upper limit and no such thing as too many. On a big event night, a packed Thursday market, live music, a tournament, shoot everything and post it all. Those are the nights that pull new people in.

Do not watch the clock. Post at these moments instead, because they happen on their own:

Moment	What to shoot
1. Doors open	Setting up, the empty patio, the course, taps ready
2. Food comes out	Any plate leaving the kitchen. Tacos, pizza, nachos
3. The event starts	Bingo cards out, paddles going, first song
4. It's going	The crowd, a winner, the music, people on the course
5. Closing out	Last call, the sunset, the fire

Hit 2 of those and the day counts. Hit all 5 and it was a good day. On a busy night, keep going past 5.

Two easy ones people forget:

- Reshare the day's feed post to your story. Five seconds, real reach
- Reshare any story a customer tags us in. Costs nothing, and they see it

Do not force anyone on camera. Some staff would rather not, and that is fine. Nobody has to be in a story to work here.

Phone stays vertical. Always.

First hour after each post: reply to comments

The first hour matters most. Comments early tell Facebook and Instagram to show the post to more people.

- Reply to every comment, even "🔥" or "nice." A short reply counts
- Answer questions with the real answer. Hours, prices, dogs, whether you need your own discs
- Do not know? Ask Claude, or check 1-START-HERE

Something rude or a complaint? Do not answer it right away. Use /reply in the Claude app. Paste in the comment and say whatever you actually want to say. It writes the version that is safe to post.

While you are there: take photos

Every photo taken today is a post next week. When there is nothing to shoot, Sunday gets harder.

Drop them in the photos/ folder and name them with the date and event, like 2026-09-14_bingo.jpg.

Worth grabbing:

- Anything busy
- Food, always
- The course and the trails in good light
- Winners, regulars, dogs

- The taps
-

The daily checklist

- ☐ Shared the 11am post to at least 2 groups from a personal account
 - ☐ Posted at least 2 stories, and more if anything was happening
 - ☐ Replied to every comment
 - ☐ Took at least 2 photos for next week
-